HONGKONG, MARCH 18TH, 1871.

In ever there was an illustration of the amount of knowledge which often lies hidden from view and unrecognised, such an illustration was given in the lecture, which Mr. Macpherson, H. B. M. Consul at Shanghai, recently delivered there on the subject of Street Literature. Mr. Macpherson has long enjoyed the reputation of being a good Chinese scholar, and his lengthened experience has naturally given the public confidence in his knowledge of the people; but probably few can have read the report of the lecture he recently delivered without a feeling of surprise at the extent of his information, and it may be, a corresponding sense of the ignorance of the large masses in China with regard to the real nature of the strange people who live around us. Mr. Macpherson, with great tact, has upon a subject for his lecture in a realistic spirit. He simply told his hearers the results of walking about the streets of the various places which he had visited with his eyes open. Curious illustrations of Chinese life were discovered at every turn; and as observed by the Acting Judge in returning thanks, "the lecture was a proof to those who did not know Chinese how blindly they walked along the streets, while matters of interesting and amusing research were staring on them from every wall." Our object in writing on this subject is not, however, merely to pass a well merited compliment to Mr. Macpherson; but it is to seize the opportunity which this lecture offers of again calling attention to the mistake that is made in the choice of officials who are sent out to govern Hongkong. If anything can be of avail against the determination of the Home Government to make use of this Colony, surely as an outlet for "protection," the contract should be given to the official who possessed the knowledge possessed by the official in the Consular Service, and the gross ignorance of those in Hongkong, ought to have that effect. Governors are appointed to Hongkong, from all parts of the world except in which the knowledge requisite for governing the place can alone be acquired—that is, in China. In the higher branches of the Service there are no officials acquainted with Chinese, and the knowledge of Chinese possessed by the other officials is of the shoddiest description. This is the real business of governing the place, consists in keeping order among the Chinese, and when the proportion of European to native residents is about three thousand to a hundred and twenty thousand, is somewhat astonishing, and perhaps forms one of the most marvellous instances of the power of red tape which has ever been brought to light. Hongkong happens to be a Colony, and so it must be placed under the Colonial Office, and appointments must be made to it from South Australia from the West Coast of Africa, and from all parts of the world where there happens to be officials requiring better pay and promotion; while everything connected with the place shows that it can only be governed properly by a man thoroughly conversant with Chinese; and while, under another officer there are half a dozen or more men in the employ of the British Government who possess this qualification. It would however, be too much to expect a revolution in traditional routine, as such appointments should be made even under the most pressing circumstances merely on account of the fitness of the person for the duties to be performed. But the error which is thus committed is something egregious. The Government of the place from top to bottom is a series of floundering and blundering, as well, indeed, it may be. Even a Governor well acquainted with the Chinese language, and the ways and customs of the people, would find it difficult enough to govern this place, but without such knowledge, the attempt must simply be utterly hopeless. It is the gross ignorance that has been at the bottom of nine-tenths of the bad government and corruption in Hongkong from the earliest times; and we are firmly persuaded that the only way to put an end to the defects of the place will be to infuse into the Hongkong Service a large element of the peculiar knowledge and experience, which can only be acquired through an intimate and lengthened acquaintance with the Chinese, through having resided among them, and possessing a thorough knowledge of the language. It has often been objected that acquaintance with the Mandarin-Dialect would be of no use in Hongkong. But this is a mere mistake. Very little time would be required for a man, well grounded in Mandarin, to gain sufficient knowledge of the local dialect for all practical purposes; and the intimate acquaintance with all matters connected with Chinese, which is possessed by the more experienced of the Consular officers, would be of more value than the knowledge of the English language. We should, bear very little of any tax, having offices, blundering notifications, unreliable district watchmen and disorganized Police, if we had at the head of the Colony a gentleman capable of deciphering the native Street Literature, and who would be able with care to make arrangements for the Government to have full and accurate information for which it is now chiefly dependent upon Mr. D. H. CALDWELL.

Why, then, should all the valuable talent at the disposal of the Home Government be thrown away, simply on account of its happening that Hongkong is a Colony and not a settlement. It would certainly not be difficult to obtain the services of suitable men so far as the matter of pay is concerned. Take, for instance, the Consulship of Shanghai as compared with the Governorship of Hongkong. In the one there is an official of twenty-five or more years experience of the Chinese, thoroughly conversant with the language and the kind of facts which are required to be known, in the result of £2,000 per annum; in the other, we have men who, scarcely in any case, know anything of the specialties of the place, paid £2,000, with allowances, furniture, &c., etc., bringing it up to considerably more. It would certainly not be a difficult matter to induce the Consular Servant to accept such an appointment; and it can only be hoped that a man in the direction may be conveyed to the Government. There may at least be some chance of our being able to govern the place when we start with a definite knowledge of what we are about. Half of the so called difficulties which a Governor of Hongkong is engaged in explaining to the Home Government, might be summed up in the simple statement: "I do not know Chinese."

At the sitting of the Supreme Court yesterday, Mr. H. G. Caldwell was granted leave to appear to the Privy Council from the decision in the Vice-Admiralty Court, in re. the Vol. and the Block-ship.

With respect to the rumour concerning the Sin Ningpo, our attention is called to the fact that it goes to Shanghai and Ningpo, and had been out five days and a half when the Sin Ningpo was captured. In their report, there is no account of the Sin Ningpo having been captured by a man of war, but the Vol. and the Block-ship.

By the steamer Saxonia, we note the departure of the Colony of the Hon. Mr. Firth, who had for a number of years held the post of Consul at Ningpo, and who has now retired in consequence of the recent change of government. The Saxonia will be a good vessel for the Vol. and the Block-ship.
